Module aims

To encourage students to independently explore and develop their skills and knowledge via contemporary debates and future developments of the strategic alignment, engagement and deployment of an organisation's workforce. Students will research the diverse contribution that such essential HR management practices will have on future business performance. To develop analytical techniques and judgements based on theoretical models and contextual trends that impact on resourcing and talent management across strategic business functions.

Module Learning Outcomes - at the end of this module, students will be able to:

1	Demonstrate critical awareness and justification of effective resourcing and talent management strategies (including work-force planning, learning and development, performance management or similar). based on an evaluation of national and international employment markets.
2	Develop and critically evaluate talent management and succession planning, and recruitment and retention strategies with a view to building long-term organisational performance.
3	Critically analyse the different ways in which employee turnover can impact on an organisation's ability to achieve its strategic goals, and demonstrate understanding and application of lawful and ethical people management processes within this field.

Assessment

Indicative Assessment Tasks:

This section outlines the type of assessment task the student will be expected to complete as part of the module. More details will be made available in the relevant academic year module handbook.

Assessment 1: Case Study Report: Students will look at a case study of an organisation of their choice and critically review the resourcing and talent management strategies. They will then go on to look in more detail on the talent management, succession planning and recruitment and retention strategies that promote building long-term organisational performance. Underpinned by relevant theory and academic research. (3000 words)

Assessment 2: Presentation. Students will produce a presentation on how employee turnover can impact strategic goals in an organisation of their choice. Students will look at how people management processes of employee turnover are managed in a lawful and ethical way. (For example dismissal & redundancy). Underpinned by relevant theory and academic research. (30 minutes)

Learning and Teaching Strategies

The learning and teaching strategy will consist of formal lectures to present theory, principles and practices which will form the foundation of the learning outcomes. Students will be encouraged to interact and contribute as a means of developing critical skills. Tutorials will be activity based using real world case studies and live examples to apply the theory into practice and develop their decision making and evaluating skills. In addition, students will be encouraged to undertake self-directed study and further research on selected topics to acquire additional perspectives which will provide them with a deeper understanding of the topics covered.

Indicative Syllabus Outline

- Strategic and operational HR aspects of recruitment, selection, management, retention and dismissal of employees
