Module aims

The module aims to develop and enhance students' confidence and competence in using incidental Welsh within the primary classroom. The module aims to encourage a positive attitude to the Welsh language in the primary curriculum. Learning Welsh gives children an opportunity to broaden their horizons and to learn about the culture of Wales. Children can develop positive attitudes to linguistic and cultural diversity in their school and community through studying Welsh. As well as supporting the Welsh dimension, learning a language stimulates creativity and enjoyment and supports the development of speaking, listening, reading and writing and other basic skills.

Module Learning Outcomes

At the end of this module, students will be able to:

1	Critically analyse the requirements for teaching Welsh as a second language in primary schools.
2	Extend their level of understanding of incidental Welsh in the classroom and be confident when delivering second language Welsh across the primary age.
3	Apply their learning and understanding to create and plan a Welsh resource pack through demonstration of appropriate pedagogy and resources.

Assessment

Indicative Assessment Tasks:

This section outlines the type of assessment task the student will be expected to complete as part of the module. More details will be made available in the relevant academic year module handbook.

Assessment 1:

To create a cross-curricular learning pack based on a suitable theme for learners learning Welsh as a second language. This learning pack will be a resource for teachers to use in the classroom based on a certain theme e.g. Y Fferm (the farm). The pack will include a variety of resources, an appropriate literature e.g book or poem and lesson plans that cover a wide range of skills within the six areas of learning.

Participants will demonstrate their understanding of appropriate methodology through a range of activities and practical ideas in Welsh.

Learning and Teaching Strategies

The lectures will be interactive, practical sessions with a range of activities in Welsh. Students are put in the shoes of the children and are immersed in the language. They have an opportunity to participate a variety of activities and then explore and discuss the different methods used to promote learning. The students will create a cross-curricular learning pack based on a suitable theme for learners learning Welsh as a second language. This learning pack will be a resource for teachers to use in the classroom based on a certain theme e.g. Y Fferm (the farm). The pack will include a variety of resources, an appropriate literature e.g book or poem and lesson plans that cover a wide range of skills within the six areas of learning.

An active and inclusive approach is used to engage learners in the topics and aligned to the university's Active Learning Framework (ALF). The approach offers students a flexible and adaptive learning experience that will include face to face teaching on campus, a digital learning experience through the Moodle VLE and opportunities to practice whilst out in placement schools.

The Moodle VLE and other on-line materials and resources will be available to support learning. ALF offers digitally enabled activity incorporating flexible and accessible resources and flexible and accessible feedback to support learning.

Students will also engage in this module via the Moodle VLE by sharing their own resources and ideas and being supported additional material on Moodle.

After each lecture, students complete directed tasks which they share with their peers the following week. Students keep a subject audit and resource file to monitor their acquisition of subject knowledge.

Welsh Elements

This is a bilingual module and actively supports and encourages the use of Welsh. Tutorial support, assessment marking and feedback available through the medium of Welsh for all students.

Indicative Syllabus Outline
